- IV. Stakeholder Report: Michelle

TMS received an "A". TMS was the top scoring junior high in state (in our demographic schools) Our below proficiency Math had the most growth. With new state testing we can't compare yet. Growth compares our students to all other student in our own peers/ not just ourselves. Everyone showed growth. Scores are available on the state offices website. We know test scores aren't the only thing we look at, but we do and should celebrate it.

V. Upcoming Professional Development Day—March 19, 2014: Matt
 We started our Professional development committee in October. The committee went to a training conference using money allocated for professional development, from Trustlands money. They came back and put together a long term plan of what they can do to help teachers reach school goals and assessments. We also have teachers that have expressed an interest in learning more about assessments so we will have other learning teams, probably who will develop into future committee members so we keep continuity. We want a 2-3 year plan. We appreciate the moneys that have been allocated for professional development.

VI. Collaboration Incentive Evaluations
 Each faculty need to been evaluated each year. We have been doing this in Alpine we just have to adjust it a little bit. It is being phased in over the years. By September each educator will need to submit two SLO's two each year. We will submit it each year. It is part of the evaluation each year. This year they will go in and do classroom observations. And evaluate what we see there and then have discussions with the teachers talk about what they are doing and what they planning to do to meet the standards and they will submit evidence of what they are doing to meet the standards. Next year we will do this, and they will submit their SLO's and talk about their goals and how they are working toward their goals. It won't be a big adjustment it is just a matter of taking what we are already doing and fitting it into the new structure.
